1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

3. Claims 1-32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Burk (3676649) in view of Simpson (6017434).

4. Burk teaches a method and apparatus for analyzing signals from a detector in a chromatographic system. Signal T is divided into segments C and the amplitudes of the segments are summed (col. 2, line 44 – col. 4, line 10, and Figures 3-4). Burk shows 15 segments at equal time intervals, which at constant flow rate correspond to equal flow and volume. The segments overlap, at least at their endpoints.

5. Burk fails to teach concatenation or filtering.

6. Simpson teaches apparatus and method for analyzing signals from a detector in an electrophoretic system. Signals from consecutive detection events are concatenated to form a spectrograph, and the recognizable noise is removed with low and high pass filters (col. 23, lines 10-42).

7. It would have been obvious to concatenate the signals of Burk in order to form a spectrograph and to filter the signals in order to reduce noise as taught by Simpson. It would have been obvious to use analog or digital filters, depending on whether the signals are analog or have been digitized.

8. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Parker (7002143) teaches compensation for drift including concatenation of signals (col. 18).
